200H YOGA TEACHER TRAINING

SEPTEMBER 2026 - JUNE 2027

ABOUT OUR COURSE

We are delighted to launch Yogahome's first 200-hour Yoga Teacher Training course. This is the culmination of decades of serving the yoga community, working with dozens of teachers and developing a deep understanding of what it takes to be an exceptional yoga teacher. If you have practised at Yogahome, you know that we stand for:

- Outstanding quality of teaching
- Inclusivity
- Diversity of techniques and styles

Rooted in these values, participants will qualify being able to deliver authentic, high quality, well informed, safe and ultimately transformative flow classes.

Taught primarily in person over 10 months, including a 3-day immersive residential retreat near London, this is a comprehensive and thorough training. Industry-facing, highly practical and hands-on, this training will support trainees to enter the world of teaching yoga with confidence, ease and a solid knowledge base. It is steeped in yoga philosophy but is designed to accommodate the needs and expectations of the contemporary yoga practitioner.

Led by two Senior Yoga Teachers who have been teaching at Yogahome for well over a decade: Isabell Britsch and Shira Hess, the training also features a number of other Yogahome teachers. This wide range of styles and approaches is one of the unique aspects of this training, and will significantly enhance participants' experience, resulting in an extensive range of modalities available for graduates.

The course will be accredited through Yoga Alliance Professionals.

OUR APPROACH

Broad & Comprehensive

This carefully curated training is unique in that even at a 200-hour level it offers participants experience in a broad range of disciplines.

Complementing the training's sequencing, teaching skills, asana labs and anatomy and physiology modules, trainees will qualify having also a solid and extensive knowledge base in a wide range of additional modalities.

Applicable in a variety of contexts, these resources will benefit people practising at all levels of yoga experience, thereby increasing the range of opportunities available for our trainees when they qualify.

Bringing together a range of Yogahome teachers who are specialists in their field, trainees will learn how to incorporate into their classes: meditation, sound, pranayama and breathwork, and restorative yoga, amongst other modalities. This will give them the edge and enrich and elevate their offerings.

Authentic

What runs through the training and all the modules is offering the tools and supporting trainees to develop their own authentic voice and teaching style.

We know that this takes time and that the style will evolve over time and experience of teaching. But this training is practical and hands-on. Trainees will have time to teach each other during our weekends and get immediate feedback from the lead teachers, as well as required to teach 15 external classes (outside of the training weekends).

We are certain this will give trainees a solid base and a real taste of their specific approach.

Traditional & Contemporary

Honouring and drawing on ancient yogic texts and philosophy is an essential part of this training. Our philosophy and history modules include an overview of texts such as Yoga Sutras of Patanjali, Bhagavad Gita and non-dual Saiva Tantra sources. We believe that even just an overview knowledge of these texts will offer trainees a deeper understanding of yoga and will in turn enhance the physical practice, coherence and authenticity of the classes they will be able to offer.

Of equal importance are contemporary evidence-based and science-based approaches to postural yoga and meditation. Both ancient and contemporary sources support our approach that respects the spiritual roots of yoga as a meditative practice of self realisation, but puts the modern practitioner at its heart. So new research into anatomy and using fitness and mobility techniques will strongly feature in our training to ensure that trainees are aware of the industry at large and meet the expectations of modern yoga practitioners, many of whom are likely to also partake in a range of other sports and fitness activities.

Non Dogmatic

The broad curriculum and range of teachers shore up a non-dogmatic approach, which is flexible and people-centred that does not rigidly adheres to one school of yoga teaching and dismisses others. Trainees can expect new science and evidence-based studies feeding into our asana labs, experiential anatomy and trauma-informed modules, which underpin our approach to alignment and to leading a class.

Based on recent research, trainees will learn to create inclusive classes through their verbal cues and overall attitude in response to the multitude of bodies and abilities out there. We believe this emphasis will ensure their classes appeal to a wide range of people and incorporate the rich and varied styles of teaching yoga whilst remaining coherent.

Vinyasa

The training is rooted in a Vinyasa Flow tradition, which emphasises dynamic, breath-led movement, and a continuous flow of poses. Classes follow a general structure, but there is no set sequence and Vinyasa classes can be adapted to different levels and contexts.

This flexibility is one of the system's main advantages. Whilst our sequencing modules in particular will follow this tradition, the training will draw on a wide range of styles and sources, and is open to everyone from any yoga background.

Our intention is for our trainees to be well-versed in the building blocks of a yoga class and confident in teaching a range of breath-led styles. They will be able to draw on a wide range of sources for inspiration and weave them into a safe and coherent structure.

WHO IS THIS TRAINING FOR?

This training is for you if you are passionate about sharing the benefits of the practice that you experience and are keen to add yoga teaching to your career path. There is no need to want to change your whole career! The course is for you even if you don't think at this stage that you would want to teach.

You might want to:

- deepen your practice and experience of yoga
- learn more about the poses, anatomy, sequencing and hands-on-assists
- learn more about the roots of yoga and its philosophy
- personal development

What you will receive

In addition to a course manual with details of the material covered in sessions, trainees will receive a curated reading list as well as a variety of links to online resources and articles to expand their knowledge and help navigate the extensive labyrinth of information out there.

This will be an invaluable companion throughout the training and beyond.

TEACHING TEAM

ISABELL BRITSCH - LEAD TEACHER

Isabell has been teaching yoga, mindfulness and meditation at a senior level since 2009. She has been involved in training yoga and meditation teachers since 2017.

Her flowing vinyasa yoga classes explore ever changing, imaginative, challenging and fun sequences. They are set in a welcoming and inclusive space weaving in yoga philosophy and pranayama. Connection to the breath, attention to alignment, and encouragement to develop clarity and awareness off the mat are integral to her teaching.

Isabell's meditation and mindfulness classes emphasise a deepening self awareness and understanding of our internal psychology - our patterns of behaviour and how they influence our lives.

SHIRA HESS - LEAD TEACHER

Trained with Claire Missingham in 2012, Shira has been teaching for over a decade. Her classes offer carefully designed and creative sequences, rooted in, and inspired by yogic philosophy. Nourishing hands-on assists are a vital part of her classes and support practitioners to access deeper forms of each poses.

She qualified as a sound healing practitioner with Leo Cosendai in 2021 and has been holding regular sound baths since then. She also ran Yogahome's last CPD programme for yoga teachers in 2023, including short courses on hands-on-assists and sequencing.

What guides Shira as a teacher, and as an eternal student is the experience of yoga as tool for self-reliance, courage and profound awareness.

IAN STONEHAM - Anatomy & physiology

SCARLETT PERDEREAU - Experiential anatomy and pre/post natal

FLORENTINA LAM-CLARK - Intro to Ayurveda; restorative and yin yoga

Anything else

A modern style and freshly renovated large beachfront studio apartment in Miami Beach with 180-degree ocean views of the crystal clear water. The apartment features a king size bed, fast and free unlimited 40mb WiFi speed and a 65 inch 4K LED TV. We just got done renovating every single aspect of Pure Miami Beach. We basically tore it down to the cement walls and floor and then rebuilt it with functionality and design in mind!
